Notice.

Those who are indebted to me are earnestly requested to call and settle their accounts. I must have the money that is due me, my business demands it. I trust this notice will be fully understood. So please call and settle and perhaps save yourself additional costs of suits. This is imperative.

Respectfully,
294 MRS. CORNE W. BAIRD.

DEATHS.

Father James Patrick Barry, aged seventeen, for twenty-one years in charge of St. Paul's church, Lexington, died suddenly Saturday morning of heart trouble. Father Barry arose to light the fire in his room and when he bent over suddenly straightened and fell back dead. He had expired before his assistant, Father Delaney, could reach his side.

Father Barry was the much beloved pastor of the Catholic church in this city for a number of years, going from here to Lexington to reside.

Father Barry was born in London, Eng., and was educated for professorship, holding a position of this sort for several years in London. He came to America in 1868 and was shortly afterward ordained a priest. He has no known relatives. Father Barry was an authority on canonical law and was a profound student. It was said of him that he mastered Euclid at the age of thirteen. He had his tomb prepared in the Catholic cemetery at Lexington ten years ago and with all inscriptions thereon save the date of his death.

Father Barry was a man of great learning and ability. He spoke Spanish, Italian, German, French and English without accent or flaw.

Father Barry was first irreverent rector of St. Paul's appointed by the bishop of this diocese and not subject to removal save for "just and sufficient cause" according to the laws of the church. The appointment itself is an exalted honor, as there are few such pastores and such appointments are made only in the case of tried and true men.

Bishop C. P. Maes will pontificate at Requiem High Mass at St. Paul's Lexington, this morning at 10:30 o'clock. The services will be very imposing, being participated in by many priests. Father James L. Gorey, Secretary of the Bishop, will be master of ceremonies.

Judge Caleb W. West, aged 65, native of Harrison county, died in San Francisco, Cal., hospital Sunday night, of appendicitis. The remains will be brought to Cynthia for burial in Battle Grove. They will probably reach that city Saturday or Sunday. He was a man of much distinction and well-known throughout Kentucky.

—See page 6 of this issue for notice of death of Dr. Hugh M. Clendenin, of Louisville.

—Gen. Fayette Hewitt, one of the best-known men in Kentucky, a high officer in the Confederate army and for many years Auditor of State, died at his home in Frankfort Tuesday night after a long illness. Gen. Hewitt had not been engaged in active business for several years and has spent much of his time in his library. He was never married.

LAST TWO DAYS.

To-day and to-morrow are the last two days to attend Harry Simon's White and Clearance Sale. Great Bargains are offered.

SUES FOR $20,000 DAMAGES.

Mr. Wm. Hinton Davis, formerly of this city, whose wife died in Georgetown, Jan. 5, of typhoid fever, has filed suit in the Scott Circuit Court against the Georgetown Water, Gas, Electric and Power Co. for $20,000.

Plaintiff as administrator of his deceased wife, alleges that the defendant Company was obligated by contract to furnish pure and wholesome water, fit for domestic use, drinking, cooking, etc., to deceased wife; that defendant company failed and refused to comply with contract, that instead water, impure, unwholesome and full of typhoid bacilli was furnished; that deceased wife contracted typhoid fever on account of its use, and after a lingering and painful illness died of the disease. Plaintiff says that defendant at the time it furnished impure water to his sick wife knew of its impure condition. C. J. Bronston is attorney for plaintiff.

THE HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA.

The music furnished at the Grand Opera House Monday evening for "The Flaming Arrow" was by the Paris Public School Orchestra and was excellent. The audience showed its appreciation by hearty applause after each number was played. This orchestra was organized two months ago, and the proficiency acquired in so little time is truly remarkable.

The orchestra is composed of the following young people: Misses Esther Margolen, the leader and instructor; Essie and Goldie Saloshin, Harmon Stitt; Prof. Johnson, Messrs. Wm. Talbott, Jr., Maurice Bernaugh, Sidney Ardery, Earl Swearingen. This excellent orchestra will furnish the music at the Opera House on Feb. 2 when "The Witching Hour" will be here.

Miss Genevieve Foote, the accomplished and talented pianist, will give a benefit for the orchestra on the night of Feb. 12, at the High School chapel, and the room should be crowded, for this orchestra is deserving of encouragement from our citizens.

Trust's Extravagant Claims.

The press bureaus of the tobacco and warehouse trusts are getting in their work through the daily press from day to day. It comes in the shape of news dispatches detailing the discovery of "oodles" of new territory in various States where Burley tobacco superior to the Kentucky article may be grown in any quantity and almost without labor, until no more Kentucky Burley will be needed. Again and again the news columns of the city papers tell of the wonderful crop that is to be raised this year in Kentucky and always to be sold through the warehouses or loose market—enough to swamp the Burley pool and put the organized growers out of business. If half that is claimed were true, Burley tobacco would be as cheap as musty hay in less than two years.

But the half is not true. There will be probably as large a crop raised in the Burley belt as can be raised—possibly, if the season is favorable, all the barns will hold, but that doesn't signify that it will be indiscriminately dumped on the market at any price. The farmers are just now reaping the benefits of organized pooling and will be slow to throw away the advantages gained by heroic sacrifices. We believe a larger per cent. of growers than ever will place their tobacco in the hands of the Burley Society for sale, and that by so doing they will realize a fair price no matter how large the crop. Any other course would spell ruin, says the Dover News.

Jack Binns, the Latest Hero.

Every newspaper in the country is now telling of the hero of the wireless telegraph, the newest of wonders in modern wizardry. It has been made great by the infusion of the human into its almost superhuman magic. Courage, devotion to duty, the fearless facing of danger for the sake of others, these are the big, broad strokes painted into the picture of wireless telegraphy by Jack Binns, operator.

Jack Binns—that is all we know about him. Where he came from, who were his parents, what he looks like—these are facts to be written by some later biographer when time has been taken to gather data. He was the wireless operator on the ill-fated Republic. When the collision occurred in the fog off Nantucket he was at his post, and he stayed there. That is the fact worth noting. He stuck right by the job. Others got excited, but Jack Binns was there with his hand on the key, flinging out across the black night the cry of the sinking vessel for help.

How many times the crackling ashes broke from the masthead above; how many times the nervous finger repeated that appeal, we do not know; but who can measure the suspense, the agony of waiting before there came tapping into the little deckhouse where Jack Binns sat the message from the French Captain of the La Lorraine?

"Tell them I am coming," he flashed to a coast wireless station which had been first to pick up the Republic's cry. Vibrating through the impenetrable murk the work of hope was repeated, and the ears of Jack Binns, keyed to the highest tension, heard it as it slipped through the darkness into his room.

Now in the exultation of the moment did he forsake his task. Only for long enough to carry the news to the Captain were his fingers absent from his key. The good tidings passed from lip to lip, and new courage possessed the crew.

Light is like comparing a very small boy with a full grown man. In fact is absurd to compare the electric with any other light. It is in a class by itself. W.B. Reduso CORSETS

The Perfect Corset for Large Women

It places over-developed women on the same basis as their slender sisters. It tapers off the bust, flattens the abdomen, and absolutely reduces the hips from 1 to 5 inches. Not a harness—not a cumbersome affair, no torturing straps, but the most scientific example of corsetry, boned in such a manner as to give the wearer absolute freedom of movement.

New W. B. Reduso No. 770 for large tall women. Made of white cotton. Hip supports front and sides, also made in batiste. Sizes 20 to 36. Price $3.00.

New W. B. Reduso No. 772 for large short women, is the same as No. 770, except that the bust is somewhat lower all around. Made of white cotton. Hip supports front and sides. Also made in batiste. Sizes 20 to 36. Price $3.00.

Ask any dealer anywhere to show you the New W. B. "Hip-subduing" models from $1.00 to $3.00 per pair.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Mr. John Hildreth, of Chicago, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. E. B. Hedges.

—Miss Macie Talbott visited Miss Willie Boardman, at Carlisle, from Friday till Monday.

—The Elks' band will give one of their delightful dances at the Elks Hall this evening.

—Mrs. Janie James has returned home from a visit to the family of Mr. W. J. Kennedy, at Carlisle.

—Mr. Jos. M. Hall visited his sister, Mrs. Susan Gaines, first of the week at Georgetown, who is recovering from an attack of typhoid fever.

—Mr. Earl Ferguson has rented the residence of Mr. W. E. Board, on Houston avenue, and will move with his family to town to reside.

—Mr. Earl Sellers has returned from the automobile show in Cincinnati. Mr. Sellers, while away, purchased a handsome caprice touring car, which will arrive here in a few days.

—Mr. Chas. Offutt Gibson, of Vinita, Indian Territory, is the guest of his uncle, Mr. James Gibson, and other relatives. He is the son of Mr. W. L. Gibson, formerly of Bourbon.

—President W. O. Hinton, of the Paris Commercial Club, goes to Louisville today to attend a banquet tonight at the New Stelbach, given by the Louisville business men. The members of the reception committee of the Paris Commercial Club that received the Louisville guests here last spring were each invited to attend this big banquet tonight.

—Attorney Ray Mann, of Louisville, is one of the two non-commissioned officers with twelve privates of the Third Kentucky State Guards, who has been selected to act as escort to President Roosevelt when he comes to Kentucky on February 12th to attend the great Lincoln celebration. This is quite a compliment to Mr. Mann, whose true worth and ability is being so highly recognized in his adopted home.

Mr. Wallis' Name Withdrawn.

The following telegram from Albany N. Y., is taken from yesterday's Courier-Journal, which is of interest to the many friends of Mr. Frederick A. Wallis, in this city:

"Gov. Hughes today withdrew the nomination of Frederick A. Wallis as State Superintendent of Insurance.

"The nomination was withdrawn at Mr. Wallis' request.

"In a letter to Gov. Hughes Mr. Wallis said:

"While the criticisms which have been directed against me since my nomination are each and every one of them utterly without foundation and nothing has been or can be developed which can reflect upon me in any manner whatsoever. I don't care to accept the office to which so much political opposition has been directed. I have, therefore, decided to continue in my present position with my company."

Numerous Fires.

On Tuesday evening about 6 o'clock an alarm of fire was turned from box 21. The department responded promptly and when arriving at the box found that someone had taken the box for a letter box, the letter was left in the box by the party and was afterwards mailed by Fireman Hite.

While at this fire another alarm was sent in from box 13, on Houston avenue. This proved to be caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove at the home of Conductor Mitchell, of the L. & N. The flames were extinguished with little damage.

On Wednesday night, about 12 o'clock, the fire department was again called to Houston avenue. This time the hen house of Mr. Mansfield, who lives in one of the cottages of Mr. J. J. Veatch, was on fire. The hen house and about 20 chickens were consumed by the flames. It is thought to have been of incendiary origin.

A Excellent Cleaning Fluid.

"The following recipe contains nothing injurious never takes out the stiffness from fabrics (as from velveteen and chiffon, and is at the same time a disinfectant and sure preventive of moths," says Woman's Home Companion for February. "Sulphuric ether, one dram; alcohol, two drams; chloroform, one dram; oil of cloves, one dram. Three times this amount to one quart best gasoline. The oil of cloves may be omitted if desired, as in cleaning anything white it has a tendency to turn it yellow. To cleanse a dress skirt, just double or treble the amount of these ingredients. Men's trousers can be soaked over night in this, and when pressed are as good as new. It is fine for ostrich plumes, as it never takes the curl out. Be sure and shake out in the air until thoroughly dry. Old lace clean beautifully with this fluid. Let the article to be cleaned lie in the liquid for a while, according to how soiled it is. Articles can remain in all night without injury to the fabrics in any way. By allowing to set, and pouring off very carefully, one can use the fluid over and over again."

Gets $5,000 Damages.

The case of L. C. Burns against the Clark County Construction Company, which has been on trial in the Clark Circuit Court for several days, was finished Saturday. Burns was an engineer on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, and was struck and badly hurt by a flying rock from a blast in the defendant's quarry as the train was passing. He asked for $10,000 and was given $5,000.

Opposed Personal Legislation.

By a good majority vote the Tennessee House of Representatives tabled the Senate joint resolution calling for an investigation of the alleged whisky lobby, and for the second time during the session the lower house put itself to record as opposed to any kind of personal and private legislation of this character. A similar joint resolution asking for an investigation of the charge made by E. B. Chappell and E. F. Hayes, Methodist ministers, that corrupt influences were being used on members of the Assembly, was laid on the table by practically a unanimous vote.

Special National Holiday.

The Senate Friday passed a bill making February 12 a special National holiday. The Senate also adopted Senator Knox's resolution providing for a survey of "The Lincoln Way" from Washington to Gettysburg.

Hemp Burned.

Sparks from an engine on the Louisville & Nashville railway, due in Lexington at 6:20 p.m., Friday set fire to a fifteen acre hemp field belonging to W. C. H. Woods, of the Bryant Station road and gained such headway before it was discovered that the entire crop was destroyed. The field contained about 15,000 pounds of hemp, which was valued at about $700. The workmen, eight or ten in number, left the field about 4 o'clock with two wagons on loads of broken hemp and there was no fire else in the field till after the fire was discovered at 6:30 p.m. All the machinery on the field, excepting two hemp brakes was saved.

Death of Dr. Hugh M. Clendenin.

The death of Dr. Hugh M. Clendenin, at his home, 3425 Third avenue, Monday night, was a shock to his many friends and admirers in this, his old home town where his father, Mr. Chas. Clendenin, and brother, Mr. Roy Clendenin, still reside. We take the following notice from the Courier-Journal of Wednesday.

The death of Dr. Hugh M. Clendenin at his home, 3425 Third avenue, Monday night marked the demise of one of the most remarkable professional men of the present day. Dr. Clendenin was a member of the branch of physicians known as homeopathists. Less than ten days ago, after a strenuous week at the bedside of a patient suffering from pneumonia, Dr. Clendenin was stricken with the same malady.

When it became known among his fellow-practitioners that he had been stricken by this dangerous disease, almost every ring of the doorbell at Dr. Clendenin's home announced the arrival there of a member of that branch of the medical profession. The malignant disease that had attacked Dr. Clendenin caused alarm among his physicians, and, standing high among them, as he did, was enough to cause each one to take up his case individually with a view to the application of all that science had taught them to save a life. The seriousness of the case did not dawn upon even the physicians until, in spite of their efforts, a dangerous stage of the fatal malady began to creep upon the patient.

Sunday night last, a few hours after Charles Clendenin, father of Dr. Clendenin arrived from Bourbon county, an emergency call was telephoned to one of the physicians attending him. This call was sent in following a conference between father and son. To his father Dr. Clendenin said:

"Father, I have heard a call. The call is for a larger work than I can do here. I am going to die—now I don't want you and mother to grieve for me—look at this dissolution philosophical; take a common-sense view of it; we must all part for a little while; there is no use trying to keep me here; I am going to die. I feel every symptom that we doctors know means death. It is coming. My heart is beating feebly, and I feel creeping upon me all the symptoms that tell us in our practice that hope is gone. These symptoms apply to me as they do to my patients. Father, I am watching them as I do when I watch one of my patients die. See here, feel my pulse, note how feebly it throbs—that is characteristic of pulmonary diseases—note the palor of the flesh; the blood congeulation on account of the weak action of the heart."

Dr. Clendenin's conversation with his father followed a call for him last Sunday night. Physicians flocked to the home in answer to emergency calls, the parents believing that a delirium had come upon the patient. When the physician arrived there they found the patient not delirious, but possessed of all his faculties. They found Dr. Clendenin viewing his condition through a scientific eye—through a trained knowledge of the dread disease that was taking him away. When his co-practitioners were gathered about him Dr. Clendenin called each one by name, showing that he was yet conscious of all that was about him. "I am sinking rapidly," he said to Dr. Bryan, one of his intimate physician friends. "watch the symptoms, Doctor; let's watch, see and know how we die."

Dr. Bryan, who had been almost constantly at his bedside, made haste to get to his side and take his wrist in his hand. As Dr. Clendenin had said, the pulse was almost gone. The heart, weakened by the influence of the disease, was ready to cease its trying ordeal of keeping live the spark of vitality still remaining. At intervals other physicians arrived at the home, and as each trained eye fell upon the pallid features each saw the touch of coming death there. In spite of this the patient recognized each newcomer and called him by name to the bedside. To each Dr. Clendenin said something that indicated that he had forgotten the man and was still a physician, the scientist and the student.

"Here, Dr. Coons, look at the color of my fingernails," said Dr. Clendenin. "Here, Dr. Coons, look at the color of my fingernails," said Dr. Clendenin.

"note the purple gathering beneath them; that is death, isn't it? Well, this body is too small for me—that is all right." These words were spoken by Dr. Clendenin as he critically viewed over one as the strange vitality of life ebbs away. As he lay upon his deathbed, surrounded by his family and by those men of science who coldly note every change that comes over one who is passing from this sphere of knowledge into that unknown bourne, he was conscious—so conscious that he could dictate the remedies that should be administered—the antidotes of each phase of the dread disease that held him in its grasp. Dr. Clendenin knew and was keenly conscious that as his life ebbed away he was surrounded by professional men—men who must battle with the very malady that was taking him from a scientific field in which he had always been a student and never a graduate.

Indicating the keen alertness of his scientific mind may be cited the condition of Dr. Clendenin's mind on Sunday night before his death. Mrs. Clara Mann, one of the best trained nurses in the city was in his room. He called her to his bed and said: "Mrs. Mann, I need so many grains of" so and so.

Mrs. Mann very gently told him that his physician had left imperative orders for something else.

"That is a mistake," he said; "it should be this and he outlined a prescription. She told him to be quiet, but he insisted upon his prescription. It was secured for him and when the attending physician reached his bedside he told the nurse it was good for the patient.

Later Sunday night Dr. Clendenin called his family to his bedside and told them he was dying. He asked them to view his taking away in a philosophical manner. "I am dying," he said, "and there is no use grieving about it—this body is too small for me, I have a greater work to do," he said, talking to his father. "Death is nothing more than a transition to something better. We are looking forward to that, and why mourn when a member of the family goes to that, which we are all looking forward to?"

All that medical science knows was applied to keep Dr. Clendenin alive. Through the agency of science his life was prolonged until Monday night. An hour before death came every homeopathic physician in Louisville knew of his condition—all knew that he was sinking to the last and all hurried to his bedside. Many of them could not get into the small sickroom, but all remained at his home until life was no more. There were eight of his fellow practitioners in the room when death came. A few minutes before he became unconscious Dr. Clendenin glanced about the room, and, as a smile overspread his face, he called each by name and said: "Gentlemen, I am going; come here and let me say goodbye."

The physicians gathered about the bedside—the first to reach the patient pressed a kiss upon his brow and the example was followed by all. Eight men who had many times watched death creep upon their patients stooped to leave a touch of the lips upon one in who they recognized a man in every sense of the word.

A few minutes before his death Dr. Clendenin called for his wife. All within the room gave way and when Mrs. Clendenin approached there was a smile upon the dying man's face. He was so weak he could not speak, as while he smiled into her face he passed away. Thus one of the most remarkable professional men in Louisville met death.

Dr. Hugh M. Clendenin was a native of Paris, Kentucky. He came to Louisville about twelve years ago and entered the Southwestern Homeopathic College. He was graduated from the college four years later and afterwards became secretary and professor of clinical medicine. He was a member of the American Institute of Homeopathy, the Southern Homeopathic Medical Society and the Kentucky Homeopathic Medical Society.

A few years ago Dr. Clendenin was married to Miss Julia Booker, of Eminence. Mrs. Clendenin and a daughter, Clara, 2 years of age, survive him.

The little daughter was with her grandparents at Eminence and had not been brought here during her father's illness. When the first intimation of death came to Dr. Clendenin last Sunday afternoon he said to his father: "When I go, father, I am going to stop by and see little Clara."

The body of Dr. Clendenin arrived in Paris Wednesday evening at 6:30 and taken to the residence of his father, on Second street, being met at the station by representatives of Rathbone Lodge K. of P. of this city. Funeral services were held at the residence in Louisville, Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, his fellow-physicians who attended him in his late illness and who knew him in life acting as pall-bearers. After short services at his father's home yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock he was laid to rest beside his mother in the family lot in the Paris cemetery.

Real Truth.

Truth in its essence, let it be remembered, is not to any confusing degree a matter of mere opinion. It is in large part a fundamental thing and may be known to all who seek it by its natural and distinct manifestations—rectitude, hatred of evil, the love of virtue, reverence of honor and the practice of righteousness.

Getting Near It.

Freshby—"Professor, is it ever possible to take the greater from the less?" "There is a pretty close approach to it when the conceit is taken out of a freshman."—Jewish Ledger.

First Thing You Remember.

What is the earliest thing that you remember? This would be a nice question for an after-dinner discussion. Miss Maud Allan, the dancer, in her small autobiographical essay, tells us twice over that her memory goes back to when she was five months old—five months! She was then given her first doll. She had been told of Santa Claus, and on Christmas eve had "sped down the broad staircase."

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher, of Ripley, W. Va., says, "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by THEATRICAL.

"THE WITCHING HOUR."

"The Witching Hour," which will materialize on the stage of the Paris Grand on Tuesday evening, Feb. 2, is a play that will live until nearly all of its present day competitors are forgotten.

The originality of its theme; the ingenuity of its construction; the novel treatment of scientific problems taken in consideration with its absolute deviation from the beaten track of stage craft, a combination of such striking novelty, that places "The Witching Hour" in a dramatic class by itself. It has proven a sensation wherever given representation.

It comes here bearing the prestige of continuous triumphs in other cities. Already many orders are being booked for seats. The company now engaged in the portrayal of "The Witching Hour" is composed of splendid material.

It comprises Howard Gould, Edward See, Robert Bartin, Herman Hirshberg, Alma Chester, Eleanor Barry, Jante Dunbar, Franklin Jones, George Howell, Charles Maties, Frederick Roberts, W. C. Bristol, S. Kent, W. P. Jackson and J. L. Wilson.

The Messrs. S. S. and Lee Shubert never do anything by halves. They believe in giving playgoers the best that can be procured. That is why their success has been so pronounced and continuous.

Farmers May Pool Crops.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals Tuesday construed the pooling act as passed by the 1906 General Assembly to mean that farmers may pool crops to obtain higher prices, but manufacturers, trusts and combines may not unite to enhance the price of their product beyond its real value. The case at issue was the Commonwealth against the International Harvester Company on appeal from the Hardin Circuit Court. The defense of the company was that the anti-trust act of 1890 was repealed by the act of 1906. The court says the two acts were not in conflict, but the company goes free from the construction of the indictment.

LIVE STOCK AND CROP NOTES

N. H. Rankin and James Rogers, of Carlisle, have received from Kansas City one carload of Aberdeen Polled Angus cows and bulls and one car of Herefords yearlings.

There were about 1,000 cattle on the market at Winchester Monday, but the demand for them was light. The average price was 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents.

The new year is ushered in with the cattle crop 1,000,000 head short of the previous year. This will undoubtedly cause a marked increase in the price of cattle, and ought to have upward effect on the hog market. The prediction is general that there will be an increase in the price of all kinds of stock in the early spring.

It is estimated by competent authorities that over 45 per cent. of the food products of the better classes in the United States consists of animal products. In other words half of the amount spent for food of the average family goes for meat, eggs and dairy products. This fact suggests why it pays the farmer to raise stock.

A consignment of forty brood mares from J. B. Haggins' Elizendorf stock farm left Lexington Tuesday for Henderson, Ky., to be sold at public auction there tomorrow. The consignment comprised three car loads and were in charge of James Stinnett. Last week Mr. Haggins disposed of a consignment of fifty-three mares, at Henderson, which brought an aggregate of $5,940. The principal object of sending the horses to Henderson to be sold is to improve the breeding of horses in Western Kentucky.

Spring Vegetables.

We have received fresh this morning an extra nice lot of Curley Lettuce, Green Onions, Radishes, New Beets, New Tomatoes fresh from the vines, fresh kale and Spinach Green, Celery, etc.

BATTERTON & DOTY.

Tobacco Shipments.

Mr. Kenney Nichols of this city, who is operating several large tobacco warehouses, in the handling, sampling and shipping of Equity tobacco, shipped to Louisville last week over 400 hogsheads of tobacco. The aggregate shipments made by Mr. Nichols up to this time for Paris are 1,500 hogsheads, (with 2,000 hogsheads under contract yet to be shipped. He says the tobacco is of fine quality, in splendid shipping order and will grade high.
